Lloyd Library opens Holiday Exhibition December 1!

Winter Greens: Seasonal Illustrations from the Lloyd Library

When: December 1- March 17

Where: Lloyd Library & Museum
917 Plum Street, Cincinnati

Since ancient times evergreens have been revered symbols of the holiday season. Mistletoes are celebrated for their life-giving powers, and holly boughs bring good luck. Evergreens are the plants that brighten the short days of a long winter and give us hope that spring will eventually arrive. From pines and yews, to rhododendrons and magnolias, explore the wealth of images from the Lloyd Library collection dating back to the early 1800s.

Winter Greens features early American and European books about forestry and trees, intricate botanical illustrations in bold colors and in detailed line drawings, and engaging stories about the books themselves. Prepare to be delighted and explore the science and folklore behind these celebrated plants.
