

Lloyd Library & Museum News

A little over two years ago, the Lloyd Library made a pledge to get on Cincinnati's radar. Since then, local media have helped bring Lloyd exhibitions, programs and collections to the Greater Cincinnati audience. Over 120 people attended the opening of our current exhibition, Through the Rx Bottle. Many of our upcoming programs are sold out. In response, we'll be adding more events and expanding electronic content to compliment programming.

Lloyd Makes Cover Story in Cincinnati Enquirer

The cover story in this past Sunday's Cincinnati Enquirer is all about the Lloyd Library's exhibition and history. The three-page feature, also available online, traces the history of medicinal cannabis from the 1500s to the present and its changing medicinal, legal and cultural status over time.

Soapbox Cincinnati Profiles Lloyd Exhibit

Soapbox Cincinnati features the Lloyd's current exhibition and event schedule in its April 2 issue. Writer David Holthaus connects recent trends in medical marijuana legislation with the history of medicinal cannabis showcased in our exhibit, Through the Rx Bottle. Click here to view the article and a slideshow of images.

Lloyd Fellow Cole Imperi in Cincinnati Magazine

This month, Lloyd Fellow Cole Imperi brings her perspective on grief and the discipline of thanatology to a Cincinnati Magazine podcast and print feature story. Both of Cole's upcoming lectures on thanatology (the intersection of botany and the study of death and dying) at the Lloyd are sold out. Stay tuned for more information on the Lloyd's streaming content from Cole.

Cannabis Symposium Tickets Still Available

The April 12 lecture by Don E Wirtshafter is sold out. There will be an additional opportunity to hear Wirtshafter on May 11, when he'll join professors Theresa Culley and Jonathan Cachat, along with Liz Crow at the Cannabis Symposium at the Lloyd. Spaces are still available. For more information and to register, click here.
