

Lloyd Library & Museum News

The Lloyd Library's collections grew out of research, starting with the Lloyd Brothers. Far from just reading matter, our collections now come to life through our exhibitions and the events we develop in conjunction with them. If you've been to the Lloyd lately, you've noticed expanded exhibitions and events as we partner with speakers and community organizations.

Serving Soup: Panel Discussion and Tasting

When: Thursday, January 31, 6-8 p.m.
Where: Lloyd Library & Museum

Join Harriet Matthey of Soup Cycle Cincy, food writer Bryn Mooth of Edible Ohio Valley, and Duy Nguyen of the Lang Thang Group as they share their favorite ingredients, soup making techniques and the broader importance and impact of soup. Soup tasting starts at 6 p.m., panel discussion starts at 7 p.m.
Reservations required.

Lloyd Library Featured in Goldenseal Documentary

The new documentary Hope For Hydrastis: Goldenseal's Struggle To Survive In The Wild features the Lloyd Library and founder John Uri Lloyd, who took a special interest in the herb goldenseal and its medicinal properties. Filmmaker Chad Reich interviews Lloyd reference librarian Alex Herrlein and Fellow Susan Leopold, and includes footage of the library in this brief, informative film, available here.

Ring in the New Year with our Current Exhibit

The Ingredients that Warm the Season exhibition features treasures from the Lloyd's collections and highlights the history, science and art behind wintertime culinary traditions. Haven't seen the exhibit yet? Share the experience with family and friends. Visitors also enjoy the opportunity to explore the Library's unique collections.
