

Lloyd Library & Museum News

The reach of the Lloyd Library extends far wider than a local resource for Cincinnati. As we host recent visitors from California and Hawaii, we also reflect on how we reach out beyond our walls. Through digitization projects and broadcasts, the Lloyd shares collections and collaborations worldwide.

Lloyd Featured on Cincinnati Edition

This Saturday's Cannabis Symposium is sold out, but you can listen in on a conversation between speakers Theresa Culley, Jonathan Cachat and Liz Crow on WVXU's Cincinnati Edition broadcast. Joining host Michael Monks, the speakers discuss medicinal cannabis through history and a look at how Ohio's medical cannabis program works.

Dale Gieringer Visits Lloyd

Dale Gieringer, returning researcher and co-author of the nation's first medical marijuana initiative in California in 1996, dropped by the Lloyd Library to visit the Through the Rx Bottle exhibition and sign copies of his book, Marijuana Medical Handbook. A limited number of copies are available for sale in the Lloyd Gift Shop.

Polynesian Herbal Medicine with Art Whistler

When: Friday, June 7, 7-8 p.m.
Where: Lloyd Library & Museum

World-renowned scholar Art Whistler of the University of Hawaii and Lyon Arboretum will present a lecture on Polynesian herbal medicine. Whistler is known for his work on the botany of the Pacific Islands, and his Polynesian Herbal Medicine is considered an authoritative work in its field.

Doors open at 6:30 p.m. with a light reception. Lecture begins at 7 p.m. Free and open to the public. Registration required.

Rare Periodicals Now Digitized

More of the Lloyd's rare periodicals have been digitized and are now available online. Several of these works have a focus on ginseng--a root with a long history in the Appalachian region of the United States. In fact, American ginseng has been exported to China since the 1700s. The image on the left is from a 1915 issue of The Ginseng Journal and Golden Seal Bulletin, published in Arrowsmith, Illinois.
