

Lloyd Library & Museum News

Our Fellows make an impact inside and outside the Lloyd. Since the Fellowship program began in 2013, over 20 recipients have used their time here to connect Lloyd collections with the world at large. Fellowships also uncover hidden gems and provide new ways of using our materials. Find more information on the Curtis Gates Lloyd Fellowship program here.

Cole Imperi on The Distiller Podcast

Listen in on The Distiller podcast with Lloyd Fellow Cole Imperi and host Brandon Dawson as they discuss her life's work with grief, death, and dying. Along the way, Imperi takes time to speak on her research at the Lloyd, where she developed the concept of thanabotany, or how people use plants to deal with death and dying.

The Lloyd Goes Literary

When: Thursday, July 25
When: 7-8 p.m.
Where: Lloyd Library & Museum

2018 Lloyd Fellow Heather Chacón returns to present a lecture following research for her upcoming book, Health Movements: Medicine, Empire, and Commerce in 19th Century American Literature and Culture. Chacón used the Lloyd's literary and scientific archives, as well as 19th and 20th century medical literature. Free and open to the public. Doors open at 6:30.

New Audio-Video Upgrades

After years of presentations using our current system, we're excited to move forward with major upgrades to our audio-video capabilities. These upgrades include a new projector, microphones, sound system and wireless capabilities, all of which provide a better experience for program attendees.
