

Lloyd Library & Museum News

The presence of art in science inspires Lloyd exhibits, events, and the continued development of the library's collections. These works also serve as inspiration for artists and creators themselves; our Artist-in-Residence's pieces begin with research in the library. We invite you to plan a visit for your own inspiration.

New Podcast Episode with Domonique Peebles

New this week, Between the Leaves features a conversation with Domonique Peebles, founder of Brick Gardens - an evolving venture with a laser focus on connecting communities by expanding access to fresh, healthy foods. "Everything starts with what we put in our bodies," says Peebles, whose business has grown despite (or maybe because of) the pandemic. In this episode, Peebles explains the connections between plants, health, and the power of sustainable communities.

Virtual Lecture with Artist-in-Residence

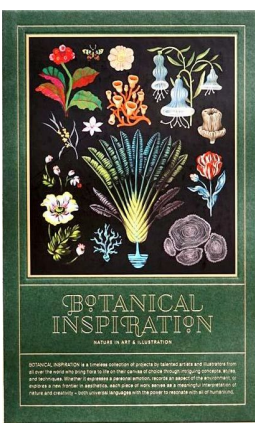

When: September 30, 2020, 7-8 p.m

Where: Virtual Lecture, Registration Required

Join Melissa Haviland, our 2020 Artist-in-Residence, for a virtual lecture discussing her project Flourish, from on-site research to her work in the studio. While in residence, Haviland researched early travel and botanical illustrations, focusing on cash crops of the past and present. This inspiration led to the creation of 200 screen prints of botanical illustration printed on handmade wallpaper. A Q&A session will follow the lecture.

Modern Floral Illustrations in Botanical Inspiration

This recent eye-catching addition, Botanical Inspiration: Nature in Art & Illustration, explores botanical art in a new way through the work of nearly 50 illustrators, each with their own distinct style.
