Book Giveaway at the Lloyd

Kids love bugs, and they'll enjoy our Incredible Insects exhibition. While supplies last, all visitors are welcome to a free copy of Cicada Symphony, a beautifully illustrated and scientifically accurate children's book. Special thanks to the author Lisa Kobman for providing copies.

Live from the Lloyd Library

Katherine Nero of the Cincinnati Enquirer paid a visit to the Lloyd for her Cincinnati Enquirer Facebook live "Coffee Break," where she showcased our current exhibition Incredible Insects. Digging deeper, the Lloyd was also featured by Nero in this last Sunday's edition of the Enquirer. The article highlights the variety of materials and usership of the Lloyd, and how we remain current by growing from our roots.

Searching for Ancient Egypt's Beekeepers

When: July 28, 7-8 p.m.

Where: Virtual Lecture

Bees and humans have interacted for thousands of years. Entomologist Dr. Gene Kritsky of Mt. St. Joseph University explores beekeeping during the time of the pharaohs. A Fulbright Scholar to Egypt and author of Tears of Re, Dr. Kritsky is a leading authority on the ancient relationship between people and insects. Registration required.
