

LLOYD
LIBRARY & MUSEUM

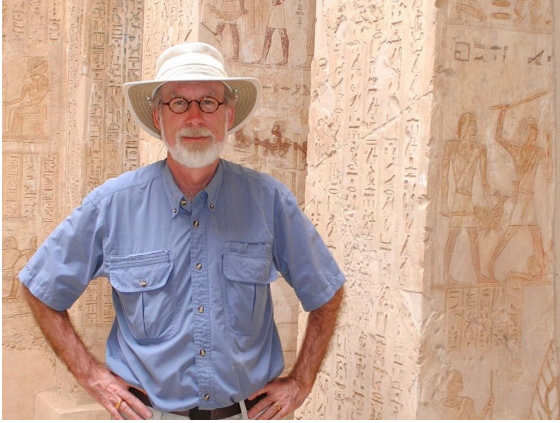

There are many ways to experience the Lloyd. Want to see the printed world of bugs through the centuries? Visit the Incredible Insects exhibition now through August 4 for a close-up, or take a look at our digital exhibit. We're hosting virtual events with Dr. Gene Kritsky and the Buckeye Botanist. Stop in for research and an in-person curators' event. Whether near or far, we're here for you at the Lloyd.

Meet our First Lloyd Fellow of 2021

We're happy to welcome our first Curtis Gates Lloyd Fellow in over a year, Madeline DeDe-Panken. A doctoral candidate in history at the CUNY Graduate Center, she originally planned to begin her Fellowship in 2020, which was postponed by COVID. Since arriving at the Lloyd a couple of weeks ago, DeDe-Panken is hard at work on her Fellowship project, investigating the interactions between the scholarly mycological community and those engaged in the "fungus fad" at the turn of the 20th century from a gendered perspective. Interested in applying for the upcoming Lloyd Fellowship or Artist-in-Residence program? Click here for details.

Searching for Ancient Egypt's Beekeepers

When: July 28, 7-8 p.m.

Where: Virtual Lecture

Bees and humans have interacted for thousands of years. Entomologist Dr. Gene Kritsky of Mt. St. Joseph University explores beekeeping during the time of the pharaohs. A Fulbright Scholar to Egypt and author of Tears of Re, Dr. Kritsky is a leading authority on the ancient relationship between people and insects. Registration required.

Meet the Curators on Final Friday

When: July 30, 5-6 and 6-7 p.m.

Where: Lloyd Library

Meet the curators of the Incredible Insects and Cicada Room exhibitions during the Lloyd's first in-person program in over a year. In conjunction with Cincinnati's Final Friday gallery walks, this ticketed event allows visitors to join the curators and artists to hear stories of the books and artwork. Two time slots are available at 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. Registration required.

Insects: Plants Need 'em, Feed 'em, and Eat 'em!

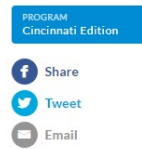

When: August 11, 7-8 p.m.

Where: Virtual Program

Explore the botanical world through the lens of insects with the Buckeye Botanist, Andrew Lane Gibson. Ecologist, photographer and Instagram sensation Gibson shows the intimately intertwined worlds of plants and insects. From pollinators and predation to dispersal methods and chemical warfare, there's plenty to discover--even in our own backyards--between these two vital groups of organisms. Registration required.

Lloyd Panelists Featured on Cincinnati Edition

Executive Director Patricia Van Skaik and Lloyd speakers Domonique Peebles, Cedric Rose, and Scott Beuerlein appeared on last Wednesday's Cincinnati Edition on WVXU. Topics discussed with host Michael Monks included the Incredible Insects exhibition and the ecological role of insects in gardens.
