Abstract and Provenance
The collection consists of materials related to the history of the Lloyd Library & Museum. It chronicles the Lloyd Library & Museum existence when it opened its doors at 309 West Court Street location in 1908 to its new building at 917 Plum Street from 1971 to the present. Most of the records gathered are from current and past staff members of the Lloyd. This collection is currently, and continuously, in process.

Arrangement:
Additional Series are currently organized alphabetically by name. Contents within these containers are organized in an alpha-numeric system (A-Z, earliest date to latest date.) Series are noted if materials follow original order.
Scope and Content
The Legacy Finding Aid describes materials that include various publications either produced by the Lloyd or publications that feature the library and museum. Additional series were added starting in 2020. They expand the history of the Lloyd with documentation relating to the construction of the Plum Street location, additional publications produced post 1970, and materials from past exhibits. This includes materials that had limited access (i.e., contents of a historic time capsule) to provide researchers a richer scope of the history of the Lloyd Library & Museum.

Conditions Governing Reproductions and Use:
The Lloyd Library & Museum retains copyright to the bulk of the collection. Requests for permission to publish, display, or redistribute information from this collection must be submitted in writing to the Executive Director of the Lloyd Library & Museum. Materials in the collection authored by entities other than the Lloyd Library & Museum are governed by U.S. Copyright Law. It is the responsibility of the researcher to obtain copyright permissions of all interested parties. Request for Reproduction Rights from The Lloyd Library & Museum form.

Researchers may photograph materials using personal cameras or other electronic devices, only for purposes of private study, scholarship, research, or classroom use. Use of flash photography is not permitted. Images may not be published in print or online or transferred to any other person or institution without first obtaining written permission from the Lloyd Library.

Requests for scanning or photocopying must be approved and performed by Library staff. Staff reserves the right to refuse or limit copy requests based on condition of the materials.

Biographical History:
The Lloyd Library & Museum was founded in 1902 when brothers John Uri Lloyd and Curtis Gates Lloyd were combined their book collections became available to the public at 224 West Court Street. When their collections outgrew that space, they moved across the street to 309 West Court. The Lloyds constantly added space because Curtis devoted most of his time to collecting. During Curtis’ travels, he carried lists of the titles he and John desired and would send crates of volumes back home as he acquired them. By the mid-1920s, the collection had become a world-class library of about 50,000 volumes, with strengths in pharmacopeia, eclectic medicine, and early American plant medicine.

In 1917, Curtis established a trust for the library to ensure continued collecting and maintenance after his death. A new library building was constructed in 1970 at 917 Plum Street, directly next to the old library - which was torn down for a parking lot. The current library has over 30,000 square feet of space and contains over 150,000 volumes of books, serials, and journals and about 3,000 linear feet of archives and artifacts. Thanks to the care and attention of the Lloyd brothers, the Lloyd Library & Museum continues to acquire current information on its core subjects and to preserve that information for future generations of scholars.

Series: Publications and Publicity (1996-2021):

Includes publications produced by the Lloyd Library & Museum and printed publicity mentioning the library.
Series: Stationary (c.1908-2021):
A folder from 1940 contained examples of many pieces of stationary the library used then. Included in that envelope were letterheads, envelopes, note paper, stampers, and Lloydia stationary. Added to this series are more recent examples of stationary used by the library staff.
