

LLOYD
LIBRARY & MUSEUM

We're wild about collaboration! Our exhibit and events showcase how working with artists expands the potential of our collections and what the library has to offer. Whether you call it chemistry, synergy, or something else, the results are always eye-opening and thought-provoking.

Join Audrey Bell for Transformative Encounters

When: Thursday, August 11, 7-8 p.m.

Where: Virtual Lecture

We're excited to announce a virtual program with Audrey Bell, 2022 Lloyd Library Artist-in-Residence and medical illustrator based in Detroit. She will discuss her time at the Lloyd researching local fauna to inform her project Transformative Encounters, an exploration of interactions between species in Ohio, and the ways they have been documented through herbaria, botanical illustration, mapmaking and text. Topics include her research and creative process, and how Bell created the work in response to the Lloyd's collections. Registration required.

Check Out the Wild/LIFE Exhibition

For the first time ever, the Lloyd is hosting a traveling exhibition--and this one is worth the wait! Wild/LIFE is the triannual exhibition from the Guild of Book Workers, co-sponsored by the Midwest Chapter, and features approximately 50 works of artists' books and fine bindings by members of the Guild (example pictured). Stop in to explore these one-of-a-kind works alongside illustrations from the Lloyd's own collections.

Book Artists Visit Lloyd

Members of the Cincinnati Book Arts Society (CBAS) recently visited the Lloyd to view the current Wild/LIFE exhibition and illustrated books from our collections. Kindred spirits with the creators of the exhibit, these local book artists partnered with our curators on past exhibits, and continue to find inspiration in the blend of art, history and science at the Lloyd.
