

LLOYD

LIBRARY & MUSEUM

With warmer weather here, it's time to get outside! Learn how organizations like Groundwork Ohio River Valley provide opportunities to not just get outside, but make a difference too. If it's a rainy day, we've also got you covered--check out new content on our YouTube channel or browse rare books virtually in our digital collection.

Groundwork: Where Justice and the Environment Meet

When: Thursday, May 25, 7-8 p.m.
Where: Lloyd Library

Join Jaeydah Edwards and Luis Aguilar of Groundwork Ohio River Valley as they discuss projects to monitor and address water quality issues in local creeks, streams, and the Little Miami River, as well as air quality in some of Cincinnati's most climate-vulnerable areas. Groundwork ORV works toward the equitable restoration of the Greater Cincinnati environment through community partnerships, promoting climate-safe neighborhoods and youth training programs.

Meet our Newest Board Member

We are pleased to announce that Niqué Swan has joined the Lloyd Library Board of Directors. Niqué brings a wealth of experience as an entrepreneur and business development leader with deep experience in operations, financial management and strategic planning. As we look to the future, the Lloyd will also benefit from Niqué's background in urban design, downtown development, and architecture. Join us in welcoming Niqué Swan.

Catesby's Natural History Digitized

If you've visited our current exhibition The Mighty Deep, you've seen examples of the scientific artistry in Mark Catesby's early 18th-century work The Natural History of Carolina, Florida, and the Bahama Islands. One volume featuring sea life images is now digitized and ready to virtually explore here. Discover (or re-discover) these rare hand-colored illustrations and accompanying text from early American natural history.

Recent Programs Now on YouTube

Want to watch, re-watch or share one of the recent programs hosted by the Lloyd?
