

LLOYD

LIBRARY & MUSEUM

The Lloyd's inaugural Annual Appeal is in motion! Please watch your email for the launch of our first-ever year-end appeal to help with the Lloyd's greatest needs. This supports reference service, preservation of our collection and the expansion of our educational offerings for the community. And, make sure to engage with the Lloyd this November by visiting our shop for holiday gifts, strolling through our A Foray Into Fungi exhibit, or checking out our newly updated YouTube channel!

New Donation Reflects History of Pharmacy

A big thank-you to Susan Myre for her donation of six Delft porcelain tiles decorated with scenes from the history of pharmacy (detail pictured). Commissioned by the pharmaceutical firm Burroughs Wellcome, the tiles belonged to her late husband and professor of pharmacy, Steven A. Myre. These tiles are unique to our collection and add to the ceramic pieces we have, notably the Turkish pottery purchased by the Lloyd family in 1906.

Lloyd Programs Available on YouTube

If you haven't visited the Lloyd's YouTube channel lately, there's plenty to discover. Maybe you missed a program, wanted to share the Lloyd with others, or just want to rewatch a favorite! Our YouTube channel features top-notch speakers on a variety of fascinating topics. The two newest additions are Brad Bolman's lecture on mycology history and Eugenia Bone's cooking with mushrooms program.

Last Chance to See A Foray into Fungi

We can hardly believe A Foray into Fungi exhibition is nearing the end of its run on Saturday, November 18. Catch it for the first time or take one last look before we prepare for our next exhibition, Flora Mania. Explore six centuries of fungi through rare books, artwork, and more on display. Thank you to all our visitors who helped make Foray such a success!
