

LLOYD

LIBRARY & MUSEUM

The Lloyd's program schedule for the new year is already buzzing! We appreciate the interest in our programming and want to take this opportunity to mention the many ways you can engage with the Lloyd, including our podcast episodes, YouTube channel, and, of course, visits to the library.

Saving All Flowers from Extinction is Sold Out

The Saving All Flowers from Extinction program with Valerie Pence on January 17 has sold out! In the meantime, catch a conversation with Valerie Pence in the newest episode of the Lloyd's podcast Between the Leaves. There are more winter and spring programs on the horizon at the Lloyd, so stay tuned for announcements.

The Sweetness of Honey Panel Discussion

When: February 7, 7-8 p.m. Reception at 6:30 p.m.
Where: Lloyd Library

Spaces are filling up for The Sweetness of Honey Panel Discussion. Hear from area experts Brandon Reynolds, Jenny O'Donnell of Queen City Pollinator Project, and Gene Kritsky on their work with beekeeping and honey. Reception will include treats sweetened with honey. Registration required.

John Cage's "Mushroom Book" at the Lloyd

The fascination with fungi never stops at the Lloyd, and we're always excited to find like-minded people in unexpected places. Did you know that avant-garde composer John Cage was also an avid amateur mycologist? Cage (pictured foraging) originally assembled a portfolio of writing and illustrations into a "mushroom book" in 1972. Recently republished with additional material, this fascinating two-volume edition titled John Cage: a Mycological Foray is now in the Lloyd's collections.

The Lloyd Library is closed Monday, January 15 in observance of Martin Luther King, Jr. Day
