LIBRARY & MUSEUM

How do you experience The Lloyd? Our upcoming programs are perfect examples of the wide variety of our offerings. There's more to come all summer long with more information, including sign-up links, available on our event calendar.

More-Than-Human Medicine Artist Talk

When: Wednesday, June 24, 7-8 p.m.
Where: Lloyd Library & Museum

Join Sara Torgison, the co-curator of our current exhibition and 2025 Lloyd Library & Museum Artist-in-Residence, for her insight into More-Than-Human Medicine, an exploration of human interdependence with plant and animal species that have supported our wellness across centuries. Torgison will discuss her use of craft processes as a way of reclaiming time, from researching plants to rendering animals. Registration Required.

Fungal Communication

When: Wednesday, July 8, 7-8 p.m.

Where: Lloyd Library

Gabrielle Cerberville, author, mycologist, and educator, otherwise known as the Chaotic Forager, invites audiences to rethink what it means to communicate with the more-than-human world. Blending mycology, philosophy, foraging practice, and reflections from her debut book Gathered: On Foraging, Feasting, and the Seasonal Life, Cerberville explores fungi as living beings whose ways of sensing, exchanging, decomposing, and world-making challenge human assumptions about individuality, intelligence, and relationship. Registration Required.

Dye Garden Walk and Workshop

When: Saturday, July 11, 10 a.m.-noon

Where: Weavers Guild of Cincinnati, 4870 Gray Road, Cincinnati, OH 45232

Take a walk through the garden with us and explore the art and tradition of natural dyeing with the Weavers Guild of Cincinnati. Tour the Guild's carefully planned dye garden, where plants are grown specifically for use in coloring fibers and textiles, followed by a tour of the historic house. Enjoy light refreshments while you create your own naturally dyed bandana during an optional hands-on activity. $5 materials fee to be paid directly to the Guild at the time of the event. Registration Required.
