

LLOYD

LIBRARY & MUSEUM

Through our current exhibition More-Than-Human Medicine, we recognize and honor the role of animals and plants in the long history of human medicine. The Lloyd is excited to welcome both our human and non-human presenters in the upcoming program Therapy Animals in Care and Community, still available for registration below. In addition, Brad Bolman's program on dogs and human health is now available on our YouTube channel!

Therapy Animals in Care and Community

with Pet Partners of Greater Cincinnati

August 5, 7-8 p.m.
Registration Required

When: Wednesday, August 5, 7-8 p.m.
Where: Lloyd Library & Museum

Marilyn Edwards of Pet Partners of Greater Cincinnati, an all-volunteer nonprofit organization, shares how trained therapy animal teams bring comfort, emotional support, and meaningful connection to people across the region. Combining scientific research with firsthand experiences, this program highlights the therapeutic power of human-animal relationships and the growing role of therapy animals in health and wellness. Chris Seelbach, President and CEO of SPCA Cincinnati, will introduce Edwards and participate in a Q&A session following the program. Registration Required.

What Dogs Teach Us About Human Health

with Brad Bolman

LLOYD
LIBRARY & MUSEUM

Speaking of the role of animals in health and wellness, the recent program What Dogs Teach Us About Human Health by author and professor Brad Bolman is now streaming as a video on YouTube. Catch this video and many more from our past programming anytime on The Lloyd's YouTube channel.

A Gift with Local History Connections

A recent gift from Polly Stein arrived with two stories to tell. Along with an inscribed copy of Wild Wealth by Marion Rombauer Becker, co-author of The Joy of Cooking, Stein donated a 1915 herbarium created by her father, James L. Magrish, for a Hughes High School science class. We also learned that Stein's grandfather was Irwin M. Krohn, namesake of Krohn Conservatory. Yet another example of how donations can reveal unexpected and meaningful connections!

Art Teachers Learn About The Lloyd

We were thrilled to share The Lloyd with local arts educators at the Cincinnati Museum of Art's Summer Teacher Institute. The session featured a conversation between Lloyd Librarian Patrick Ford and our 2025 Artist-in-Residence, Sara Torgison, about how our collections inspired More-Than-Human Medicine, and highlighted the many ways teachers can use the library for professional growth, classroom inspiration, and creative student visits. We can't wait to welcome more educators and young learners through our doors!
