LIBRARY & MUSEUM

Happy (early) Halloween! We've got only treats--no tricks--for our readers, with upcoming programs and a spooky tidbit from our collections, and two ways you can enjoy our programs from the comfort of home!

Chestnuts: The Comeback Kids?

October 21, 7-8 p.m.
Registration Required

When: Wednesday, October 21, 7-8 p.m.

Where: Lloyd Library & Museum

As part of the 2026 FotoFocus Biennial's theme, The Long View, memoirist, cookbook author, and writer for Edible Ohio Valley, Annette Januzzi Wick hosts a panel discussion at The Lloyd with Mark Neikirk, local writer and former Kentucky Post editor, and local farmers Chris Smyth (Southern Ohio Chestnut Company) and David Hoff (Cincinnati Chestnut Company). The American chestnut, long since eradicated through a blight in the early to mid-1900s, was once a staple in furniture, fences, food pathways, and holiday meals. Learn about growing efforts underway to restore the American chestnut to its former place in the landscape and taste samples of chestnuts in various forms.

Registration required.

Agroforestry:

A Multifunctional and Resilient
Landscape Pathway

Virtual Program
with John Munsell, PhD

November 4, 7-8 p.m.
Registration Required

When: Wednesday, November 4, 7-8 p.m.

Where: Virtual Program

John Munsell, PhD, Professor of Forest Management at Virginia Tech University, explores how agroforestry, the integration of trees and perennial plants into agricultural landscapes, can enhance ecosystem health while supporting productive working lands. Drawing on the past, present, and future of agroforestry in temperate ecosystems, attendees will learn about the many roles trees play as sources of food, fiber, medicine, craft materials, and biodiversity, while also contributing to cleaner air and water, carbon management, and resilient landscapes. Registration required.

The Witch of the Waterfall

As many of our readers may know, The Lloyd's co-founder, John Uri Lloyd, wore many hats, including that of a novelist. For this year's Halloween, we're sharing the spooky image pictured here from his 1903 novel, Red Head, whose cast of characters includes Merrie the witch, as illustrated by Reginald B. Birch. Shrouded in mystery, Merrie is a keeper of secrets who lives behind a waterfall in Eastern Kentucky.
