Celebrate the Season with Art, Science, and Holiday Cheer

Discover unique gifts, explore remarkable plant survival stories, and enjoy festive treats at our upcoming events this season.

From finding one-of-a-kind treasures to celebrating the opening of The Art of Survival exhibition and enjoying hot chocolate and cookies, there are plenty of ways to welcome the season and get into the holiday spirit at The Lloyd!

Opening Reception

Friday, December 11, 5-7 p.m.
Lloyd Library & Museum
Free and open to the public.
Light refreshments

We hope you'll join us as we celebrate the opening of The Art of Survival.

The Art of Survival explores the remarkable ways plants adapt, endure, and sometimes disappear, revealing the extraordinary stories behind the diversity of plant life on Earth. From desert plants with ingenious survival strategies and ancient trees such as the ginkgo and giant sequoia to familiar food crops and species threatened by disease, habitat loss, and human activity, the exhibition examines the many forces that shape plant survival.

Visitors will encounter stories of resilience and vulnerability through rare botanical illustrations from the books in our collection and mounted plant specimens borrowed from the Margaret H. Fulford Herbarium at the University of Cincinnati. The Art of Survival brings together art, science, and history to illuminate the lives of plants and the people working to better understand and preserve them. Together, these stories offer a renewed appreciation for the endurance of the plant world and a reminder that its future depends, in part, on the choices we make.
